

I use Ridge regression to predict the firework number for different time steps. The green dash line is the prediction. The red solid line is the actual number of firework.